

British International Studies Association

XXIII Annual Conference

UNIVERSITY OF

SUSSEX
AT BRIGHTON

14 – 16 December, 1998
hosted by the International Relations and Politics Group

Welcome to the University of Sussex

The International Relations and Politics Group are most pleased to welcome all conference delegates to what appears to be the largest BISA conference ever. We hope that the Conference provides the best of opportunities to present your research and exchange ideas in a receptive and critical environment.

There are in excess of eighty panels at this year's conference spread over eight sessions and involving almost four hundred and fifty participants. Notwithstanding the high number of delegates, the large number of publishers, and the numerous research papers being presented over the three days of the conference, we hope that by concentrating the conference activities primarily in two buildings - the Refectory Building and the Pevensey Building - you will get the maximum benefit with the minimum inconvenience from the 1998 Conference.

We like to boast that Sussex University is the sunniest campus in the country. Whilst we cannot guarantee the weather, do take the opportunity to walk around the campus - a leaflet is included in your conference pack on walks around campus - and enjoy the magnificent parkland setting of the University. Alternatively, when the panels are over for the day, the attractions of the bright lights and the sea-wind at the fairground on Brighton' Palace Pier may prove just too strong for the multitude of great minds in the Association ...

Many of the International Relations faculty staff and research students are contributing to the conference proceeding with a range of papers which reflect well the interdisciplinary commitment to International Relations which marks out both our undergraduate and postgraduate degrees. Do take the opportunity to familiarise yourselves with the International Relations taught and research degree programmes offered at Sussex, as well as the facilities in and through which these programmes are supported - in the Graduate Research Centre for Social Sciences, in the Centre for the Comparative Study of Culture, Development and Environment, and the Sussex European Institute.

It is with particular pride that, in the year that Sussex hosts the Conference, the Association has asked Michael Nicholson, Professor of International Relations at Sussex, to give the plenary address to Conference. As the turn of the century is upon us, it is a fitting moment and compelling demand that Professor Nicholson asks of us all 'What's the use of IR?' We anticipate and are confident that both Professor Nicholson's response and those of the many papers at the Conference will reaffirm both the utility and desirability of a discipline that has been central to a proper understanding of this turbulent century.

On behalf of the International Relations and Politics Group at Sussex, on behalf of the national BISA Conference organisers - Pauline Kelly, Dr. Justin Morris, and Prof. Chris Brown - and on behalf of the local Sussex Conference organising committee, may we extend a warm welcome to all the participants of the 1998 Conference of the British International Studies Association.
